Discovered—ships from the Middle Ages

Construction on the Varberg Tunnel in Sweden—part of a modern railway project—has resulted in an unexpected bounty of historical underwater finds: six shipwrecks spanning the Middle Ages to the 17th century, all maritime remnants of what was once a bustling harbor.

Of the six separate wrecks found in 2025, four are from the Middle Ages (or Late Middle Ages), one is from the 17th century, and one couldn't be dated, according to a translated report from archaeology consultant group Arkeologerna.

Elisabet Schager, Arkeologerna project manager, said in a translated statement that wrecks Nos. 2, 5, and 6 were the most intriguing. Found in the central part of the city, which was once an original shoreline and location of harbor defenses, Wreck 2 was both the most preserved and the only with a continuous structure. Wrecks 5 and 6 required hasty removal due to time constraints on the tunnel's construction project, which could have left additional portions of the ships underground.

In 2022, when Eileen Lavine was 97, she wrote her life story. "A Medley of Extemporanea," she called it, after a line in the sardonic Dorothy Parker poem about life's unpredictability.

It's fitting since little in Lavine's life adhered to the status quo. "This is my medley," Lavine writes in the opening pages.

Ag Hall of Fame seeks nominees

The San Joaquin County Agricultural Hall of Fame is requesting nominations for outstanding agricultural leaders and mentors in our community. Now in its 41st year, the Agricultural Hall of Fame honors those individuals who have contributed to agriculture and to their community in significant ways. Each year, awards are given to at least three living recipients, as well as posthumous ones.

The San Joaquin County Agricultural Hall of Fame honors those who have contributed so much to a great part of our heritage. Our Agricultural Hall of Fame marks the efforts and history of those who have gone before, those who have graced our homes and enriched our hearts and those who in the days past laid the foundation upon which we build for today and tomorrow. The agricultural community is a wonderful example of people working together and continuing a tradition that has been handed down throughout the years from people who had to sacrifice a great deal, both personally and physically, to nurture our land and our community.

Nomination forms are available from the Greater Stockton Chamber of Commerce website (<http://stocktonchamber.org/ag-hall-of-fame/>), and need to be submitted by 5:00pm, Monday, July 27, 2026 in order to be considered. For more information, please call Timm Quinn at 209-292-8423 or visit the Stockton Chamber of Commerce website, www.stocktonchamber.org and click on the Ag Hall of Fame link in the signature events menu.

Ag virus is found

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service and California Department of Food and Agriculture (CDFA) have confirmed the positive identification of citrus yellow vein clearing virus (CYVCV) in a residential citrus tree in the Lodi area of San Joaquin County.

The plant sample was confirmed positive for CYVCV on July 7 following a routine multi-pest survey conducted by CDFA. In response, a half-mile plant quarantine has been established around the detection site to help prevent the artificial spread of the disease. The current quarantine area is one-square-mile and is bordered by E Pine St. to the north, S Guild Ave. to the east, E Kettleman Ln. to the south and S Stockton St. to the west.

Fear is a gift from God. It is actually one of God's great gifts. It alerts us to dangers that may be waiting in dark alleys. It awakens us at night when we hear strange sounds that make no sense. It causes us to take precautions when accidents happen. It summons our senses when things are out of “the ordinary.” It’s God’s “early warning system” that notifies us that something unusual or unique is about to happen. Fear, after all is said and done, is necessary for us to survive.

Some fears are helpful, some are harmful. Dr. Samuel Johnson, for example, would never step into a room with his left foot. He sincerely believed that something terrible would happen to him in that room if he “stuck” his left foot in first. Julius Caesar was terrified by the sound of thunder and would hide. Even Peter the Great, with all of his power, cried out in fear when he was forced to cross a bridge. Those, we might say, are harmful.

David also had his fears. His friends forsook him, his confidants betrayed him and his family was not loyal to him. But he overcame all of his fears by his faith in the faithfulness of God. “When I am afraid,” he said, “I will trust in You - In my God, whose Word I praise.” He was not fear free. He was faith focused.

When doubts surfaced and threats surrounded him, when times were uncertain and days filled with dangers, he always turned to God in faith knowing that God had His hands over him and His arms around him.

One day, John promised us, “God will wipe away all tears.” Sickness and sadness, sorrow and suffering - whatever causes people pain or problems - will be gone, banished forever. We all look forward to that special day!

So it is strange that David said that “God will record my sorrows, and list my tears on His scroll and in His record.” Whatever could be God's reason for doing this to David? And might He do the same for us? Does it make sense that God would make a permanent record of grief - David's grief and our grief as well?

God knew of David's suffering and He knows when we suffer. Our God is a God who cares for us and has compassion for us when we are gripped with grief. Why keep such a record?

Because God will respond to our suffering!

Too often when we are overcome with illness or are struggling with sickness, we turn to the products we have stored in our medicine cabinet or to the countless remedies on the shelves of our pharmacies. And if and when they do not work we turn to a physician and seek his counsel and cure. It is the normal thing to do.

Unfortunately, all too often we only pray when all else fails. It is as if God was not aware of our sickness or had no time to be concerned with our health.

Not so, says David. God has a permanent record of each and every tear that falls from our eyes because they matter to Him. This is His way of saying, I do care!

Aaron out for another 60 days

NEW YORK -- Aaron Judge will need another scan before a major ramp-up of activity while his fractured rib heals, and the New York Yankees moved their captain to the 60-day injured list Saturday.

Sidelined since May 31, Judge had a scan during the All-Star break that was reviewed by Dr. Gregory J. Pearl, chair of the department of vascular surgery at Baylor Hamilton Heart and Vascular Hospital in Texas.

"Obviously, healing going on, which is good, but still not able to start any baseball activities or anything," Yankees manager Aaron Boone said after a game against the Los Angeles Dodgers was rained out and rescheduled as part of a day-night doubleheader Sunday.

"He needs to get to a point to where he's asymptomatic to where you really start ramping up more upper-body stuff," Boone said.

Judge, 34, is hitting .248 with 17 homers and 38 RBIs but had just one homer in his last 18 games before going on the injured list.

"The good news is, you know the pain is subsiding somewhat over the last couple weeks and changing from that sharp to more of that pull," Boone said. "So hopefully he continues to improve there and then we can start upping things."

Boone said how Judge feels will determine when he goes for another scan. New York was 36-23 when the outfielder last played but is 18-20 since.

Scientists Found a Massive Great White Shark Near Florida

The “great” in great white shark (Carcharodon carcharias) refers to the animal’s enormous size. But while we know they are quite large, how often do people actually get to see one in person? Well, recently, a team from OCEARCH bumped into the largest great white they’ve ever tagged, an ocean giant named “Contender.” Thanks to OCEARCH’s advanced tracking technology, we can now follow Contender across the ocean in real time!

Last year the research group OCEARCH located and tagged a gigantic male great white shark, now known as “Contender.” The shark’s name honors the Contender Boats that OCEARCH uses for their fieldwork. He was tagged approximately 40 miles off the coast of the Florida-Georgia border. Contender holds the title of the largest male white shark ever tagged by OCEARCH in the western North Atlantic. He weighs an impressive 1,653 pounds and is nearly 14 feet long. Scientists estimate that Contender is around 30 years old.

In November 2023, the OCEARCH team began their “Expedition Southeast” to learn more about great white sharks, including where they spend the winter and what they eat. The team recently returned to the waters off the southeastern U.S. once again to continue this mission. During their most recent trip, they encountered Contender. They successfully tagged the shark and collected important samples from it to learn more about sharks in this region.

The team used baited lines attached to buoys to attract Contender to the side of the boat. Once the shark took the bait, the lines detached cleanly, and the researchers followed the buoys to carefully guide the shark alongside the boat. They gently restrained the shark while veterinarians and researchers checked his health and collected small samples from it. During this process, the shark remained mostly submerged in the ocean water alongside the boat, allowing the fresh seawater to move over its gills. This helped the shark to breathe and stay comfortable.

The team quickly measured and weighed the enormous shark and gathered various biological samples, including blood, tissue, parasites, bacteria, fin clips, and sperm. Then, finally, Contender was fitted with a “SPOT” tag (Smart Positioning and Temperature tag) and released. While the health evaluation and tagging process might be a bit uncomfortable for the sharks, it doesn’t cause any harm. Data from the sharks’ tags show that they return to normal behavior and strong swimming within a few hours. Additionally, research indicates that this capture method causes much less stress compared to older techniques.

Why This Research Matters

For the SPOT tag to get an accurate location, it needs to be above the surface for about 90 seconds.

While finding and tagging a massive shark like Contender is certainly exciting, his contribution to education and the conservation of his species is only just beginning. The biological samples collected from Contender will help scientists assess the shark’s health, diet, genetics, and hormone levels. DNA analysis will also provide insights into the population structure, interactions, and genetic diversity of great white sharks. But one of the most extraordinary advancements in great white shark research today is Contender’s SPOT tag. The SPOT tag, which is attached to Contender’s dorsal (top) fin, lets researchers follow its movements and location. Every time his dorsal fin breaks the surface of the water, the satellite tag “pings” and sends tracking information back to OCEARCH, allowing the team to see where the shark is in real-time. By collecting these GPS locations, researchers can map Contender’s migration patterns and gain a better understanding of where great white sharks travel, the types of habitats they utilize, and their networks. In addition, the public can also follow Contender’s journey online or in the OCEARCH App.

A Giant Contribution to Conservation

Great white sharks live 40 to 70 years on average. Although we will have to wait to learn more from Contender’s tracking data and biological samples, scientists have already learned a lot about great white sharks from previous tagging efforts. Between 2012 and 2024, OCEARCH tracked 92 white sharks, which provided several key insights into their behavior. For example, great white sharks in the western North Atlantic tend to gather in Atlantic Canada and Cape Cod to feed during the summer months. The data also showed that great white sharks are more common near popular swimming beaches than previously thought, although encounters with humans in these areas remain rare.

The post Scientists Found a Massive Great White Shark Near Florida appeared first on A-Z Animals.

Great white sharks (otherwise known as great whites or white pointers) are famous for their distinctive fins and ferocious teeth! This apex predator needs impressive dentition to catch and eat prey in waters where it competes with other animals for food. But what are shark teeth made of, and how do they use them? You will discover this and a lot more about shark teeth right here.

These sharks are found worldwide in temperate and subtropical waters and often migrate seasonally. In the U.S., they can be found in the Atlantic Ocean from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico and the U.S. Caribbean, as well as in the Pacific Ocean from Alaska to California and Hawaii. Younger sharks are usually found nearer the shore, but mature individuals are also seen in offshore pelagic waters.

These are large animals – at maturity, they can reach 20 feet in length and can weigh over 4,000 pounds. To maintain this huge body, they eat about 0.5 to 3 percent of their total body weight per day. For an average weight of 2,750 pounds, this equates to 13.75 to 82.5 pounds of meat per day. They are opportunistic feeders who are willing to feed on a wide range of fish, marine invertebrates, and mammals. Juvenile great whites hunt bottom fish, smaller sharks, small rays, schooling fish, and squids. The adults can tackle seal and sea lion colonies and sometimes scavenge on whale carcasses. To catch, kill,

Great White Shark Jaws and Bite Force

This shark’s jaws are reinforced by layers of tough mineralized cartilage. Furthermore, their jaw muscles are arranged in a unique way that allows them to exert a very high bite force no matter how wide their mouth is open. This means they can powerfully bite down on prey of all sizes. Their upper and lower jaw muscles are divided by a tendon that pulls the muscle fibers straight and perpendicular to the jaw as the mouth opens. Using digital reconstruction models, scientists predict that the maximum bite force of a great white may reach 18,000 Newtons (4,000 pounds), amongst the highest known for any living species.

However, this phenomenal bite strength takes years to develop. Younger sharks have surprisingly weak jaws and would not be able to bite a chunk off a sea lion. Their jaws only strengthen once they reach about 10 feet in length, and their diet changes. What’s more, juvenile white sharks have a sub-terminal mouth (the lower jaw is shorter than the upper jaw and the opening is pointing downward), which is most effective for eating crustaceans and fish near the bottom. The adult’s mouths, however, are more terminal (pointing forward) and are better suited for grasping sea mammals.

Great white sharks rely on their teeth for survival from a very young age. They are born with teeth, and studies have found that even shark embryos have teeth. They are formed from specialized skin tissue on the jaw cartilage. Great white teeth are arranged in rows and attached to the jaws by connective tissue.

They are made from a very hard substance called enameloid covering a core of dentine (apatite and collagen). There are up to 28 exposed teeth in the upper jaw and up to 25 in the lower jaw, for about 50 visible teeth at any time.

However, below their gums, there are a lot more! Their ‘spare’ teeth are developing, folded back against the inside of the jaw. They are connected by collagenous and fibrous tissue and are not fixed into bone as in humans and many other mammals.

When a tooth is lost, another emerges from the gum to take its place. They can get through thousands of teeth in their lifetime. This process is called polyphyodonty and has been described as a conveyor belt. A great white shark can have around 300 teeth in total.

Juvenile shark teeth are pointed—just the right shape for grasping smaller prey, such as crustaceans, that can be swallowed whole. Adults, however, feed on sea lions and seals, and these cannot be swallowed whole. So, they have serrated, flat, triangular teeth that they can use for seizing prey. They use these deadly teeth to great effect, stripping fat and muscle from their prey’s bodies. They often release their prey several times, consuming it in multiple bites.

When a shark opens its mouth, its teeth (especially on the upper jaw) are moved forward by connective tissue. As the jaw closes, the teeth are The post Inside the Steel Jaws of a Great White Shark appeared first on A-Z Animals.

Debtor takes home 50 big ones

A Maryland man almost gave away a scratch-off lottery ticket to settle a debt, but ended up winning $50,000 thanks to his wife’s interference.

Cumberland resident John Hamilton Jr. told Maryland Lottery officials he bought his $5,000,000 LUXE scratch-off ticket for $50 from the Sheetz store on McMullen Highway in Cresaptown and put it in his back pocket, where he almost immediately forgot about it.

Hamilton said he ran into a friend the following day and, remembering the ticket in his pocket, offered it to the other man to settle a $40 debt.

“I told him it could be something on it,” he said.

Hamilton said his wife stopped the exchange at the last possible moment.

“She put her hand between us and intercepted the play,” he said. “That’s when I thought I should play it and see if it really was a winner.”

The ticket turned out to be a $50,000 winner.

“I was dumbfounded,” the winner said.

Hamilton said his prize money will go toward taking his family on a Disney cruise and paying down his mortgage.

Nutcracker in Minnesota stands at 65’ +

A Minnesota city is seeking Guinness World Records recognition for its newest landmark: a 65-foot-tall nutcracker dubbed Verne the Patriot.

The massive nutcracker, designed by artist Katie Walgrave, was installed recently near the edge of Luverne, and was officially opened to the public in a

Verne the Patriot is part of the town’s nutcracker-themed tourism campaign, which was adopted in 2017. The theme was inspired by local resident Betty Mann, 96, who became famous for her collection of 7,554 nutcrackers.

Mann was present at the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

“Right now, I’m crying, I have tears in my eyes because I’m overwhelmed,” Mann told The Minnesota Star Tribune.

The current Guinness World Record for largest nutcracker was set by a 33-foot, 1-inch tall sculpture in Germany in 2008.

The City of Luverne is hoping the 65-foot-tall Verne will capture that title.

“We know he’s the tallest because he is almost twice as tall as the current world record holder,” Walgrave told KMSP-TV.

Bear trapped in car—blows horn to get attention

Residents of a Colorado neighborhood thought a rude neighbor was honking a car horn all night, but they awoke to discover the culprit was a bear trapped inside an SUV.

Patrick Sullivan shared cellphone camera footage of the scene that greeted Gold Hill residents when they investigated the source of the honking Sunday morning.

The video shows a bear in the front seat of the closed SUV, leaning on the horn.

A man uses a long rope to open one of the vehicle’s doors from a distance, allowing the bear to climb out and dash away.

Residents said the bear caused damage to the side panel of the car and set off the driver’s side airbag.

Monkeying around in Florida

A Florida city is reminding residents to keep a safe distance after multiple sightings of wild monkeys in the area.

A wild rhesus macaque was photographed last month outside the Lakeside Inn in Mount Dora, and another monkey was caught on camera July 15 at Gilbert Park.

Resident Priscilla Spears said she spotted a monkey near a Mount Dora shopping plaza last week.

“I was like, ‘Who would have their dog out on a busy road?’ And as I got closer, I was like, ‘Oh my gosh, that’s a monkey,’” Spears told WESH-TV.

The City of Mount Dora posted a warning to residents on social media Monday.

“We have received reports of monkey sightings within the city. While seeing a monkey may be unusual, please remember they are wild, feral animals and should be admired from a safe distance,” the post said.

Mount Dora is located about 12 miles from Silver Springs, where a wild population of monkeys has lived ever since being brought to an island that is now part of Silver Springs State Park by a tour boat operator in 1938. The operator was unaware that the rhesus macaques were strong swimmers, and they quickly escaped the island.

‘Gator comes knocking at family home

A Florida family woke up to an alert from their security camera and discovered an unexpected visitor: an 8-foot alligator at their front door.

Palm Bay resident Sierra Wynn shared video showing the alligator that dropped by for an early morning visit at her home off Malabar Road.

“I thought at one point he was gonna come through the window,” Wynn told WESH-TV. “His tail was bouncing against the door and against the house. It was such a deep, guttural hiss and growl. He just looked so mean. I thought he was gonna come through the window.”

Palm Bay police responded to the home alongside a Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission trapper.

“We were scared. Terrified,” Wynn said. “At one point, when he was getting kind of agitated with the flashlight in his eyes, he actually looked right up at me. He started opening his mouth and growling and hissing.”

The alligator was safely removed from the scene by the trapper.

Wynn said the security camera alert might have prevented a far more serious situation.

“If we didn’t have the cameras and the features where we get notifications that there’s an animal in the yard, who knows what would have happened,” Wynn said. “If I had opened the garage to let the dog out, or if I had opened the front door, I wouldn’t have known.”

Don't let goldfish out of fish bowl

The government of Alberta is issuing an important reminder to owners of pet goldfish in the province: Don’t let it loose.

The Canadian province’s “Don’t Let It Loose” campaign was launched after more than 100 incidents of the invasive fish being found in Alberta waterways.

“This isn’t because people are flushing them down the toilet and they’re making their way to the waterways,” Nicole Kimmel, Alberta’s invasive species specialist, told CBC News. “People are actually intentionally dumping them into our waterways, and they are overwintering and thriving and finding ways to reproduce.”

The campaign is reminding residents that releasing invasive species, including goldfish, into waterways carries fines of up to $70,900 and up to a year in prison.

“Never release anything into the water that it didn’t come from,” Kimmel said. “People might think that they’re just dumping goldfish, but actually they might be introducing snails, fish disease, plant fragments that can also take over a water body in Alberta.”
